New Edinburgh Distribution Centre

Total Produce plc is pleased to announce that it has now completed the construction of and commenced operations from a new customised and state-of-the-art fresh produce distribution centre at Sighthill, Edinburgh, Scotland. This new facility replaces the Group's previous facilities at Chesser Avenue, Edinburgh, and was officially opened by Mr. Andrew Kerr, Minister for Health and Community Care.

The building extends to 34,000 sq. ft. and was completed at a cost of circa €7.0 million, including the site cost. The purpose-built facility is designed to maximise operating efficiencies in an environmentally friendly manner. The operational energy requirement has been minimised by the utilisation of the latest energy-efficient electrical and cooling systems, coupled with the extensive use of the highest grade of 100% recyclable materials.

The completion of the distribution centre is part of the continuing programme of investment by Total Produce to expand and develop its business.
